What does that mean for all of us? We have so much money from donors that want to help make students' dreams a reality. It is truly a gift. However, that money doesn't always make it into the hands of students who need it.

That's where you come in. As scholarship liaisons, you are often a direct link with the students in the colleges and departments where you work. You are the go-to resource in your areas for scholarship questions and Scholarship Universe support. And we in financial aid are so very grateful for what you do! You are an important piece in getting students connected with the resources they need for their education, which inevitably means expanding their minds, their worlds, and their possibilities.

To aid you in this important work, we are including some promotional tools to help you help our students. Please share these via your social media channels, "post" on your department's electronic billboards, or printed announcement boards too, if you still have them. Provide them to faculty so they can share them in their classrooms. And most of all, share them with the students you interact with! You matter!
